

"GOOD-BY" BY WIRELESS TELLS OF ELOPEMENT

"Am With W." Said Mrs. Webster's Message to Husband.

HAS FLED TO LONDON.

Rich Brooklyn Clubman Followed and Urged Spouse to Return in Vain.

"Am with W. Do not follow. —GEOGRAPH."

This message, by wireless telegraph from a ship out on the Atlantic, bound for Europe, was the notification to Hawley Thrall Webster, of Brooklyn, he alleges, that his wife had eloped in the most up-to-date manner. She is now in London, he says, living with Symonds Walker, a wealthy Englishman, with whom she left this country, and although her husband followed and personally pleaded with her to return, she refused to listen to him.

The alleged elopement of Mrs. Webster and her departure of her seven-year-old daughter as a result of the modern American habit of sending wives to far away country places for summer vacation, they themselves while the husband remains at his business in town. Mr. Webster is a wealthy manufacturer of silverware, a member of the Crescent Athletic and other clubs in Brooklyn and has his house at No. 44 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, a thirty years old and pretty.

She went to the Catskills with her daughter at the beginning of the summer, and there met Walker, who was in this country on a pleasure trip. Walker was the devoted attendant of Mrs. Webster. They took long automobile rides through Orange County, and their apparent infatuation was noticeable to every one but the husband, who, on his infrequent trips to see his wife, met the young Englishman and liked him.

Sent Daughter Home.

Walker packed up and left the hotel in which he was a guest as the season was about to close. Shortly after Mrs. Webster sent her daughter home to Brooklyn and did not return. It is believed she had married at a nearby station to avoid observation came to New York with him in an automobile. They secured passage on the fastest ship sailing at that time, and when well out from port Mrs. Webster established a record by sending her deserted husband a wireless message tersely informing him of her action and her whereabouts.

Mr. Webster was coming from his home, accompanied by a vicious-looking building, when a reporter for The Evening World saw him to-day.

"I can't talk about this matter," he began. "It isn't a thing that I can discuss. However, I will say that my wife is supposed to have left home with an Englishman named Walker. That is not his name. His real name is Fisher, I have said more now than I should have said. It also has been reported that the couple first met in the Catskills, and that they left for London from there. They left from Orange County. At least, that is the best information I have."

It has been said that Mr. Webster and Fisher met in the corridor of a London hotel and there, they had a scene. Mr. Webster was asked if this were true.

Is Wealthy Club Member.

"I wouldn't call it a scene," he said. Then he called to his bulldog and the pair entered the handsome house.

Mr. Webster had no suspicion of his wife until his little daughter arrived home alone. Then he heard the stories that had been current concerning Mrs. Webster and the Englishman at the summer resort. He put private detectives out to hunt for her, but the first intimation that she had really eloped came to him in the wireless message from out-of-sea.

Mrs. Webster was Miss Georgia Hart, daughter of Andrew Hart, of No. 150 Clinton Street, and was noted for her beauty. She is thirty years old, and for the last ten years has been one of the leaders in the exclusive society of Brooklyn, her talents and beauty adding to her attractiveness. Her wedding was a brilliant social event.

Mr. Webster's brother was seen at the silverware factory of E. G. Webster & Sons, Atlantic Avenue and Sixth Street, where he is manager. The brother, Mr. Webster's eloquent and admitted that Webster had followed his wife to London and found her there with the Englishman.

At the home of the Harts in Clinton street a maid said to-day that the family had gone to the country and would not return until Sunday.

GLIDDEN STARTS ON AUTO TOUR TO MEXICO

Has Ladies With Him and Carries a Letter from Roosevelt to Diaz.

BOSTON, Nov. 1—Charles J. Glidden to-day started from this city on an automobile tour, with Mexico as his destination. Mr. Glidden, who has traveled all parts of the world in his motor car, was accompanied by his wife and Miss Waldron.

He will carry a letter of greeting from President Roosevelt to President Diaz, of Mexico.

LACKAWANNA MEN HAVE GRIEVANCE.

A committee of Lackawanna Railroad engineers held a conference in this city to-day with President W. H. True and presented several grievances. The conference adjourned to meet again at 1 P. M. to-morrow, when, it is understood, the grievances will be taken up again.

LOVE TURNED A PRINCESS INTO COOK AND LAUNDRESS.

Wife of Prince de Broglie Found Happiness Even in Her Poverty.

MET TROUBLE BRAVELY. Failing to Find Other Remunerative Employment, She Is Going to Sing in Public.

HAS FLED TO LONDON.

Rich Brooklyn Clubman Followed and Urged Spouse to Return in Vain.

"Am with W. Do not follow. —GEOGRAPH."

This message, by wireless telegraph from a ship out on the Atlantic, bound for Europe, was the notification to Hawley Thrall Webster, of Brooklyn, he alleges, that his wife had eloped in the most up-to-date manner. She is now in London, he says, living with Symonds Walker, a wealthy Englishman, with whom she left this country, and although her husband followed and personally pleaded with her to return, she refused to listen to him.

The alleged elopement of Mrs. Webster and her departure of her seven-year-old daughter as a result of the modern American habit of sending wives to far away country places for summer vacation, they themselves while the husband remains at his business in town. Mr. Webster is a wealthy manufacturer of silverware, a member of the Crescent Athletic and other clubs in Brooklyn and has his house at No. 44 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, a thirty years old and pretty.

"People may question international marriages, but one is certainly proved that such happy cases can be found." The marriage of the Prince, who renounced everything for his wife's sake, to gain nothing but her love, is certainly a marriage to this unromantic age when marriages of convenience discount the affairs of Cupid.

She went to the Catskills with her daughter at the beginning of the summer, and there met Walker, who was in this country on a pleasure trip. Walker was the devoted attendant of Mrs. Webster. They took long automobile rides through Orange County, and their apparent infatuation was noticeable to every one but the husband, who, on his infrequent trips to see his wife, met the young Englishman and liked him.

Sent Daughter Home.

Walker packed up and left the hotel in which he was a guest as the season was about to close. Shortly after Mrs. Webster sent her daughter home to Brooklyn and did not return. It is believed she had married at a nearby station to avoid observation came to New York with him in an automobile. They secured passage on the fastest ship sailing at that time, and when well out from port Mrs. Webster established a record by sending her deserted husband a wireless message tersely informing him of her action and her whereabouts.

The Prince was coming from his home, accompanied by a vicious-looking building, when a reporter for The Evening World saw him to-day.

"I can't talk about this matter," he began. "It isn't a thing that I can discuss. However, I will say that my wife is supposed to have left home with an Englishman named Walker. That is not his name. His real name is Fisher, I have said more now than I should have said. It also has been reported that the couple first met in the Catskills, and that they left for London from there. They left from Orange County. At least, that is the best information I have."

It has been said that Mr. Webster and Fisher met in the corridor of a London hotel and there, they had a scene. Mr. Webster was asked if this were true.

Is Wealthy Club Member.

"I wouldn't call it a scene," he said. Then he called to his bulldog and the pair entered the handsome house.

Mr. Webster had no suspicion of his wife until his little daughter arrived home alone. Then he heard the stories that had been current concerning Mrs. Webster and the Englishman at the summer resort. He put private detectives out to hunt for her, but the first intimation that she had really eloped came to him in the wireless message from out-of-sea.

Mrs. Webster was Miss Georgia Hart, daughter of Andrew Hart, of No. 150 Clinton Street, and was noted for her beauty. She is thirty years old, and for the last ten years has been one of the leaders in the exclusive society of Brooklyn, her talents and beauty adding to her attractiveness. Her wedding was a brilliant social event.

Mr. Webster's brother was seen at the silverware factory of E. G. Webster & Sons, Atlantic Avenue and Sixth Street, where he is manager. The brother, Mr. Webster's eloquent and admitted that Webster had followed his wife to London and found her there with the Englishman.

At the home of the Harts in Clinton street a maid said to-day that the family had gone to the country and would not return until Sunday.

GLIDDEN STARTS ON AUTO TOUR TO MEXICO

Has Ladies With Him and Carries a Letter from Roosevelt to Diaz.

BOSTON, Nov. 1—Charles J. Glidden to-day started from this city on an automobile tour, with Mexico as his destination. Mr. Glidden, who has traveled all parts of the world in his motor car, was accompanied by his wife and Miss Waldron.

He will carry a letter of greeting from President Roosevelt to President Diaz, of Mexico.

LACKAWANNA MEN HAVE GRIEVANCE.

A committee of Lackawanna Railroad engineers held a conference in this city to-day with President W. H. True and presented several grievances. The conference adjourned to meet again at 1 P. M. to-morrow, when, it is understood, the grievances will be taken up again.

COCKRAN—IDE WEDDING.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—Miss Anna Ide, daughter of Hon. Charles Ide, former Governor of the Philippines, and Representative Bourke Cockran, of New York, it will be in the old home of the Ide family at St. Johnsbury, Vt.

PRINCESS DE BROGLIE.

WOMAN WANTS TO RUN A N. Y. C. LOCOMOTIVE

Miss Henrietta Snyder Applies for the Position of Fireman So She May Learn Engineer's Work.

ALBANY, Nov. 1—"Women are invading every walk of business. Why should we not be allowed to pass all examinations, obtaining very high marks?" This was now Miss Henrietta Snyder, or as she prefers to be called, Ette Snyder, of Pleasanton, Columbia County, explained to-day her application to Stationmaster Reese of the New York Central, for a job as engineer or fireman on the road.

"We have women engineers," said Miss Snyder to a World correspondent. "Typically I have the right to claim a position as engineer, and I am not too fat to be a good engineer."

The Princess, who has received all kinds of offers of assistance since the story of their struggle with adversity was printed in The Evening World, smiled as she spoke of the kindness of the American people.

"I wouldn't give up my experience of the past few days for words," she said. "It is a revelation to us both. Persons who read of our trouble sent us all kinds of help, and one old woman wrote to me all the way from Brooklyn with two baskets of food, because she imagined we were starving. It makes me feel good and happy at the same time."

The Prince and Princess de Broglie will "do their bit," beginning Monday night, at the Colonial Theatre.

However, I will say that my wife is supposed to have left home with an Englishman named Walker. That is not his name. His real name is Fisher, I have said more now than I should have said. It also has been reported that the couple first met in the Catskills, and that they left for London from there. They left from Orange County. At least, that is the best information I have."

It has been said that Mr. Webster and Fisher met in the corridor of a London hotel and there, they had a scene. Mr. Webster was asked if this were true.

The Princess was coming from his home, accompanied by a vicious-looking building, when a reporter for The Evening World saw him to-day.

"I can't talk about this matter," he began. "It isn't a thing that I can discuss. However, I will say that my wife is supposed to have left home with an Englishman named Walker. That is not his name. His real name is Fisher, I have said more now than I should have said. It also has been reported that the couple first met in the Catskills, and that they left for London from there. They left from Orange County. At least, that is the best information I have."

It has been said that Mr. Webster and Fisher met in the corridor of a London hotel and there, they had a scene. Mr. Webster was asked if this were true.

The Princess was coming from his home, accompanied by a vicious-looking building, when a reporter for The Evening World saw him to-day.

"I can't talk about this matter," he began. "It isn't a thing that I can discuss. However, I will say that my wife is supposed to have left home with an Englishman named Walker. That is not his name. His real name is Fisher, I have said more now than I should have said. It also has been reported that the couple first met in the Catskills, and that they left for London from there. They left from Orange County. At least, that is the best information I have."

It has been said that Mr. Webster and Fisher met in the corridor of a London hotel and there, they had a scene. Mr. Webster was asked if this were true.

The Princess was coming from his home, accompanied by a vicious-looking building, when a reporter for The Evening World saw him to-day.

"I can't talk about this matter," he began. "It isn't a thing that I can discuss. However, I will say that my wife is supposed to have left home with an Englishman named Walker. That is not his name. His real name is Fisher, I have said more now than I should have said. It also has been reported that the couple first met in the Catskills, and that they left for London from there. They left from Orange County. At least, that is the best information I have."

It has been said that Mr. Webster and Fisher met in the corridor of a London hotel and there, they had a scene. Mr. Webster was asked if this were true.

The Princess was coming from his home, accompanied by a vicious-looking building, when a reporter for The Evening World saw him to-day.

"I can't talk about this matter," he began. "It isn't a thing that I can discuss. However, I will say that my wife is supposed to have left home with an Englishman named Walker. That is not his name. His real name is Fisher, I have said more now than I should have said. It also has been reported that the couple first met in the Catskills, and that they left for London from there. They left from Orange County. At least, that is the best information I have."

It has been said that Mr. Webster and Fisher met in the corridor of a London hotel and there, they had a scene. Mr. Webster was asked if this were true.

The Princess was coming from his home, accompanied by a vicious-looking building, when a reporter for The Evening World saw him to-day.

DARING THIEVES HOLD UP MAN IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

Beat and Rob Victim of His Watch on Houston Street.

ONE CAUGHT ON ROOF.

Found Hiding Behind Chimney After Lively Chase by Detectives.

CARDS WERE PRINTED.

Exclusive Brooklyn Folk Astounded by News of the Rupture.

WEDDING BELLS WON'T RING FOR SOCIETY GIRL

Miss Hutchinson Breaks Off Her Engagement After a Quarrel.

TO THE EDITOR:

Brooklyn society was astounded to-day by the announcement that Miss Florence Hutchinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace F. Hutchinson, of No. 314 Clinton Avenue, and one of the most prominent young women in the exclusive set across the bridge, had broken her engagement to marry Eugene L. Hillary, of No. 16 Hancock street.

The Hutchinsons were out of the city when a reporter for The Evening World called at their home to-day, and the young man made a mystery of the affair. His mother, however, made a statement which does not agree with the reports of the winding up of the romance.

"We all thought it for the best," she said. "I do not want to talk about the Hutchinsons, but there was a reason why my son had to break the engagement.

Hillary Won't Discuss It.

Hillary, who is cashier for the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, of No. 16 Remsen street, was less communicative.

"I can't discuss the affair," he said, in answer to a question. "We simply thought it better for the future happiness of us both."

The wedding was to have taken place Nov. 25, and was to have been one of the principal social events of the season.

Both the bride and groom had been engraved and were to have been married Saturday last. When they were at a social gathering, the bride, followed by the groom, suddenly disappeared. They had been engaged for some time, and the couple had been a popular one.

Learning that he had disappeared, the Hutchinsons telephoned to the police, who soon forced him to take off his coat and stand before them. Mr. Watson, the mechanical engineer, Mr. Watson, the lawyer, and others came to the door, followed by the detective, who had been sent to take the man into custody.

At first the man denied that he had run away, but when he was asked if he had been with his fiancée, he admitted that he had.

"I have been with her," he said. "I have given up hope. She is a willful girl, and I can't afford to be around her."

When the police asked him what he had done, he replied, "I have been drinking."

He was arrested and held over for trial by Magistrate Cornell, in Yorkville Court.

The evidence concerning the house was delivered by the Parkhurst agents to Inspector Waisan, and, after getting a warrant, Detectives Clancy, Baxter and Madison made the arrest.

Mabel Wallace, who lives in the house, was also arrested, but Magistrate Cornell refused to hold her.

"I fully expect to be arrested," she said. "I have been drinking."

Commissioner Mattoh that the arrests should be made only on warrants, and that only the person charged with malfeasance should be arrested.

"It is foolish to arrest others in the place, and only takes up the time of the Court."

The evidence concerning the house was delivered by the Parkhurst agents to Inspector Waisan, and, after getting a warrant, Detectives Clancy, Baxter and Madison made the arrest.

<p